Jane's Walk Anchorage

We had great sunny weather on Saturday, May 2 for Janes Walk Anchorage. As a part of the second international "Jane's Walk," at least 20 people showed up with dogs and babies in tow to have coffee and tromp through Fairview and explore our urban environment. Council members acted as tour guides as we made our way from the Chester Creek trails through the heart of Fairview and finally on to downtown. It was a great way to get in touch with each other and with our neighborhood. We successfully built community through this unique event. For more info on what happened during Jane's Walk in Anchorage and around the world visit www.janeswalkusa.org.

Spring Clean-Up Day!

The Fairview Community Council had four trucks with volunteers out on Saturday, May for Spring Clean Up activities. The Clean Team members went through the neighborhood picking up large items (couches, beds, water heaters, tires and rims, stoves, dryers, etc.) for placement in two large roll-away dumpsters located at the Fairview Community Recreation Center. The teams worked from 9:30 am to 12:30 pm and after filling the dumpsters sat down for a barbecue hosted by Council President Sharon Chamard. Kudos to these volunteers for improving the quality of life in our neighborhood.

Fairview Oral History Project Nears Completion

At the May General Membership meeting, Leadership Anchorage participants Regan Garden, Kokayi Nosakhere, Jose Rodriguez, Mary Rydesky, and Mariko Sarafin premiered their documentary on community activism in the Fairview Community. Their goal was to create a visual story of people that live and breathe and grow old there. Learning about Fairview's history and its dwellers' dreams, and remembering that they are a community of people that want a comfortable and bright place in which to live and raise their kids and grandkids is the story's theme. As videographer Mariko noted, "We are teaching the people of Fairview that there are ears that want to hear their stories, and want to know about why Fairview is worth fighting for." Added Kokayi, "We are seeing what others have done within this solid, stable community and what they are willing to keep doing for the growth of it. We hope that newer and older residents will be inspired to get together and work for what is right for their living spaces." Community leaders interviewed included Celeste Benson, Vince Casey, George Harrison, Allen Kemplen, Lee Ross, Seamore Snell Jr., and Claris Syren.

Fairview Community Council president, Sharon Chamard, presented the proposal to implement this project. Leadership Anchorage team members Regan Garden, Kokayi Nosakhere, Jose Rodriguez, Mary Rydesky, and Mariko Sarafin created the project's plan and completed tasks scheduled over several months. The final product is a DVD illustrating the project's goal - to show why and how community members take action for the betterment of their living environment. "The team brainstormed about ideas, resources, schedules and other aspects of project. Then, with the help of Sharon and Kokayi, we contacted community activists that would be willing to speak conversationally while being recorded on film," Jose recounted. Then, with the generosity of Progressive Media Alaska, the team captured the activists' thoughts and memories on mini DV tape and began to turn the tapes into a media production, including editing the interviews into a cohesive story. According to Regan, "This DVD will be available for viewing by the youth in and around Fairview, as well as to Council members, churches, other organizations, and general audiences." Further, it will serve as a cornerstone for ongoing efforts to create an oral history of residents who think of themselves as ordinary, but whose aggregate efforts have been extraordinary in creating a thriving community - a neighborhood - within Anchorage."
